

ROOSEVELT READS RAID ACT TO THE MOB IN COLUMBUS

Speaker Is Escorted to His Stand by Federal Troops from the Garrison in City.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 13.—Coming today to the scene of the street car strike riots which kept Columbus in a state of disorder for weeks, ex-President Roosevelt in a speech here denounced in strongest terms acts of lawlessness and men who committed them. The state capital is still being guarded by militia and Colonel Roosevelt himself was escorted by United States troops from the Columbus barracks. As the strike is still on, J. C. Metcalf, chairman of the Roosevelt reception committee, asked President Taft to assign the regular troops to guard the ex-president today and the president consented.

Troops at the Station.

Colonel Roosevelt was met at the station by the regulars and state militia and committees representing the chamber of commerce and citizens of the city. He proceeded at the head of a parade to the park, half a mile from the station, where he delivered his speech.

Mayor George S. Marshall occupied a seat on the platform from which Colonel Roosevelt spoke. It has been announced that today Governor Harrison would withdraw his control of the situation here and the municipal government under Mayor Marshall would have full charge.

Colonel Roosevelt's speech was as follows:

"Before I came to Ohio, I of course knew of the lamentable conditions which had continued for so many weeks here in Columbus. As soon as I entered Ohio, and ever since, I have been from time to time addressed by enter and even personally by both sides, asking me to come to Columbus and speak. I will say frankly that I did not like to come here, but I like still less dodging, and so I have come.

Justice Is Essential.

"I notice I have been advertised to speak on the subject of law and order, and so I shall do so. But I shall also speak on justice, for exactly what is the duty of all good citizens to see absolutely and without reserve that law and order prevail, it is just as much their duty to see that justice prevails.

"The first requisite to the establishment of justice is the establishment of law and order, and woe to the man, public official or private citizen, who fails to realize this fact. And especially should we abhor and reprobate the conduct of the public servant who for any reason fails to do his duty in this regard. We must equally condemn the public servants and ourselves, the people also are as responsible as the public servants.

"If we stop content with the mere establishment of law and order, we will do no more than to put a stop to the by thoroughgoing investigation to find out whether justice has been denied and injustice committed, and then to use the whole power of the government to right any wrong that has been done.

He Takes No Sides.

"Now, at the outset, let me say as clearly as possible that I do not and cannot undertake to say what the exact facts are, for thoroughly reputable citizens, writing me on behalf of the two sides, flatly contradict each other. But there are certain broad points directly applicable to your present situation, which can be laid down without hesitation. There is no question whatever that many acts of violence have been committed, including bomb throwing, and the use of that weapon of the worst, the meanest, the basest and most cowardly type of assassins—lynchings.

"Now the first duty of the government authorities high and low, from top to bottom, is to put an end to the reign of violence and disorder, to check and punish every crime of lawlessness. No excuse can be accepted for any government official who fails to do his duty in this regard, and no excuse can be accepted for any private citizen who fails not merely passively, but actively, to perform the prime duty of good citizenship in joining with the authorities in helping to put an end to such an intolerable condition.

Compliments a Judge.

"I call your attention to what Judge Sater did a year ago in the case of the striking miners in southern Ohio. The employers applied to him for an injunction against the miners. He declined to grant it, but he gave to both parties a lecture on his duty, to which I am glad to say they paid heed.

"He warned them that violence would not be permitted and that the whole power of the state would, if necessary, be invoked to suppress it. He warned the miners particularly that their worst enemies were those among their own number or their sympathizers who committed deeds of violence and he warned the capitalists that deeds of violence by the employers did just as much damage to their cause and were just as flagrant outrages against the public as the deeds of violence committed by the miners and that one would be no more tolerated than the other.

"Therefore, friends, your first duty is to establish law and order, and it is especially to the interest of the wage workers that law and order should be established, and they should be the first to join effectively in the movement. No plea should be entertained for the moment that would delay the putting of an end to the regulation of lawless violence.

Beware of Crooked Leaders.

"Let the employees remember that it may well be to the interest of some of their leaders for political or other reasons to have lawlessness and disorder continue, but that it is pre-eminently against the interests of the working men themselves."

"Then your duty has not ended. It has only begun. Then you will have obtained law and order, but you are not yet satisfied. You must attend to this merely as the first, although a necessary and all important step in obtaining justice. In any big strike not only the employees and employers are particularly in interest, but the public is, too. Especially is this the case with public service corporations.

DIRIGIBLE BALLOONS FAIL IN A WAR TEST

One Leads Its Army Into Ambush and Enemy Captures the Other.

Preussisch-Holland, Prussia, Sept. 12.—The two dirigible balloons used for aerial scout duty by the opposing armies in the Imperial maneuvers failed miserably today, one crew leading its army into an ambush, while the other crew fell into the hands of the "enemy" when the motor of its machine gave out. The invading army triumphed.

The dirigible operating with the defenders reported this forenoon what the air men took to be the exact location of far extended entrenched lines of the invaders' infantry and artillery.

On receipt of this misinformation the defenders advanced in a strong attack only to find when the thin line of invaders retreated that they were storming a breastwork behind which trunks of trees instead of guns had been placed. Before they could recover from their mistake the defenders' tank was attacked and a victory for the invaders ensued.

The dirigible of the invaders developed a defect in its motor and being compelled to descend was captured by the enemy.
